"Serving the Institute since 1954"

[The middle illustration is approximately like a man wearing a sandwich board advertisement, except that it is a book that hinges in front of him instead of two pieces of wood with shoulder straps. His right hand is visible past the edge of the book, and is holding a tall walking stick. His head is visible above the top of the book, and we can see that he is wearing a wide-brimmed top hat and a large pair of round frame sunglasses. His feet are showing below the book and have what appears to be formal boots with extra-long fronts which enclose the feet. The overall look of the illustration is that of a fine-line drawing, such as what is used in the portraits of the Presidents on the United States' paper money. On the cover of the book are the following words:]

Thousands of used paperbacks and hardcovers in stock. Used textbooks in all subjects.
